I came
not knowing quite what I was looking for.
My first days were used to form new friendships
and find my way
to my new classes
when I noticed

I found myself wanting to be a part of this community
and I searched
for ways to belong
and I found
it was to live.

I found my friends
who shared with me
the good times
and the bad.

My professors became people not just grade-givers people interested in my life

Dorm life became my home life, I found friends
who didn't even have interests like mine.
We stayed up for hours
doing nothing constructive singing discussing arguing dreaming . . .

And there is
of course
the Special One
each of us in life finds to share the present together —
and the future.

Memories Pressed Between the Pages . . .

My learning is not limited to books only but to vast experiences here in this private world
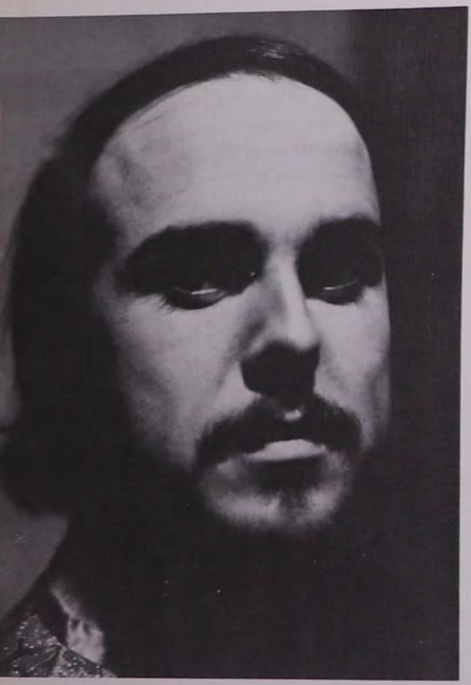
of learning and search.



I learn tolerance
and understanding.
I discover
what it is like to be faced with a decision
and only I can decide the outcome.

I learn I am on my own,
responsible for myself,
that I am becoming a person of hopes and dreams
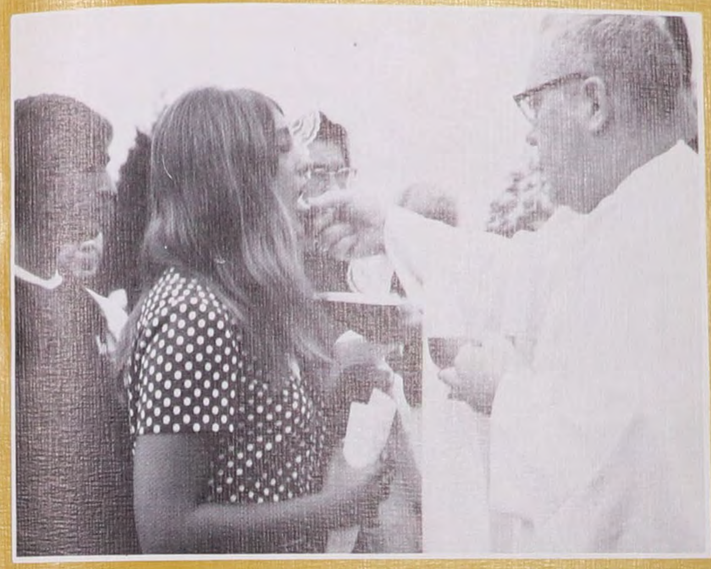
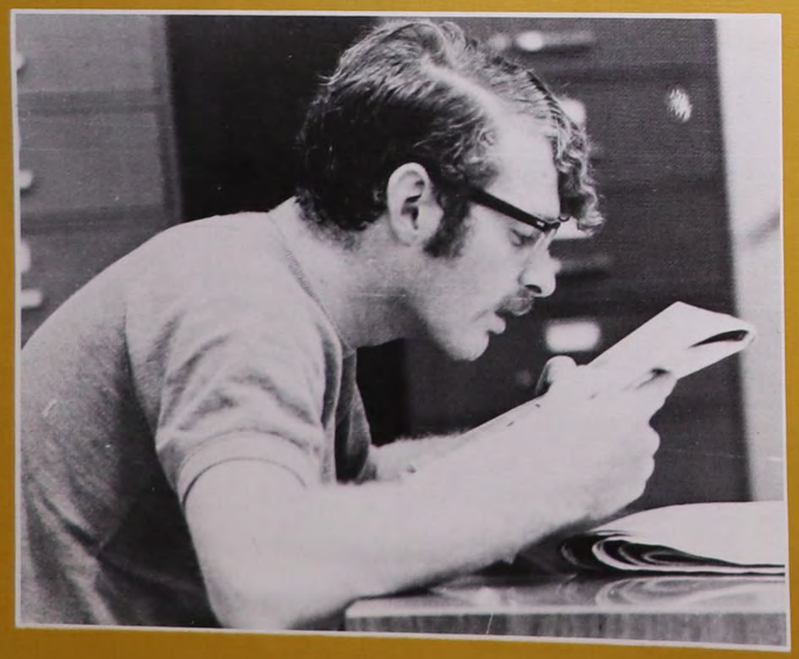
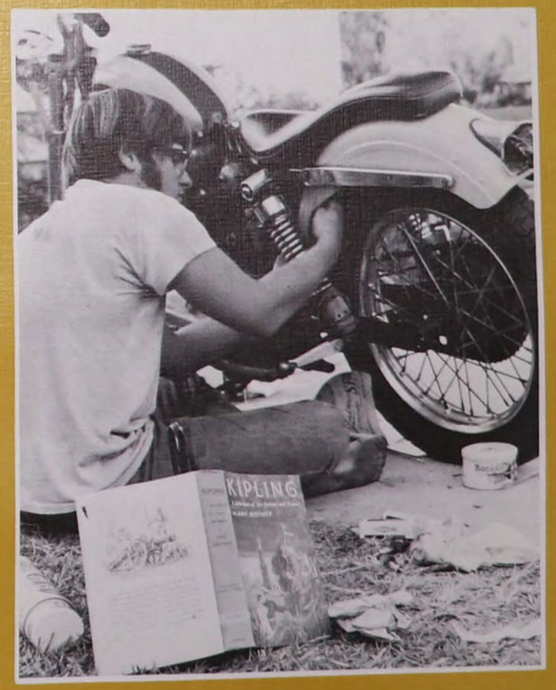
that can be reality
in the not too far off future.

The excitement of a game . . .
the faith I put in God . . .
the discovery of a poet I had never known . . .
the struggle of learning . . .
the pride of accomplishment when earned . . .







I see the joy of laughter
and the sob of tears
in my life here
that makes me better than I am.

"Farewell to you and the youth
I have spent with you.
It was but yesterday we met in a dream.
You have sung to me in my aloneness,
and I of your longings
have built a tower in the sky.
But now our sleep has fled
and our dream is over,
and it is no longer dawn.
The noontide is upon us and our half waking has turned to fuller day, and we must part.
If in the twilight of memory
we should meet once more,
we shall speak again together
and you shall sing to me a deeper song.
And if our hands should meet in another dream we shall build another tower in the sky."

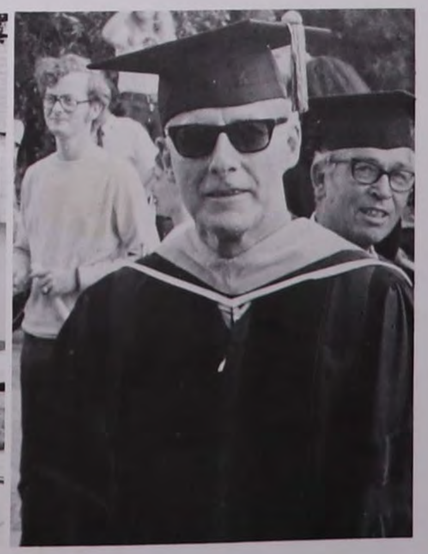
THE PROPHET

We Dedicate . . .

Dr. and Mrs. John Keller

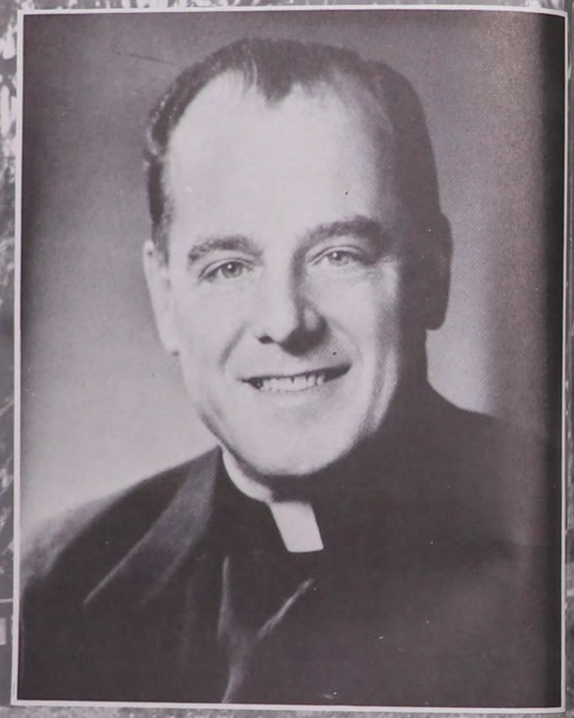


You have been with us since our freshman year and have seen us grow into the individuals we are now. In our first awkward moments four years ago, you shared our heartbreaks, tears, and joys and now you share with us our hopes for the future.

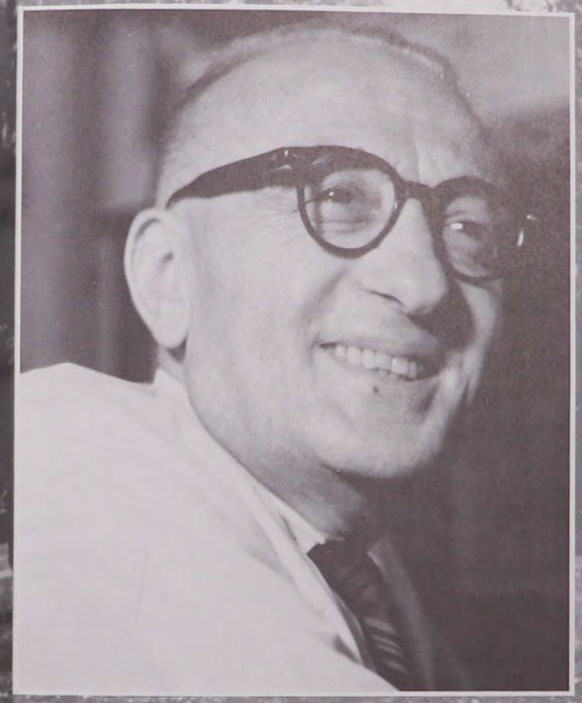
With great pride we, the Senior Class, dedicate the GOLDEN LEGEND '71 to you, Dr. and Mrs. John Keller in deep appreciation for caring so much. . . .

In Memoriam

William P. Astarita
Member of Class of '71



Rev. Francis Williams C.S.V.
Professor of Creative Teaching



Dr. Herbert Wolf
Professor of Natural Science

Love is a touch of eternity,
birth is a miracle,
death is a demand,
and life is knowing love.

And all is a creation of God.

And He designed especially for Himself,
death,
so that in our happiness here
we can learn to taste eternity.

So the beauty of their lives —
the lives of William, Michael, Herbert,
and Francis
are now a part of eternal love,
touching us with their godliness.

Brother Bernard, O.S.B.

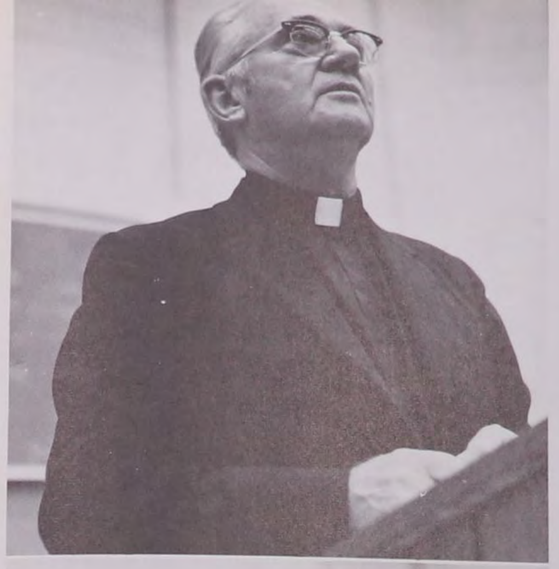
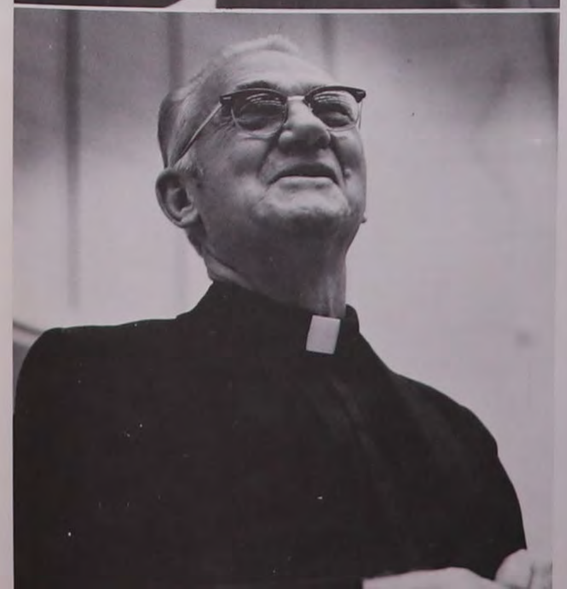
President of the College

Reverend Marion Bowman, O.S.B.





"Someday, perhaps before 2000 A.D., it may be possible to transmit matter, as energy, around the world, and reconstitute it as matter at the other end. Ships, cargo aircraft, and big transcontinental trucks may become obsolete." The quotation is from the 1970 issue of "Energy: Transactions in Time," a Kaiser News publication and not a Jules Verne fiction fantasy.

Today many of our values of tradition have been replaced with our technology of built-in obsolescence. The results are reflected not only in our technology but also in our individual selves. Our ancestors were rooted in the earth of their villages and seldom traveled beyond its limits. Family treasures were handed down from generation to generation. Personal associations were close and lasting.

Megalopolis and automation have resulted in depersonalization — even here on our own small campus. Modern transportation has made us a race of nomads where even our planet no longer has borders. We move so fast that we are even searching for ways to use our leisure. We have instant breakfast, instant friendships and instant sex.

You collegians are a product of this instant civilization. You demand instant answers and solutions to a multitude of our serious problems. And one heirloom you definitely will not accept is the tradition of war handed down to you from your parents and grandparents. Neither are you interested in accepting the philosophy of corporate conglomerates who preach push button production for instant purchase and computerized profits; nor are you interested in a self perpetuating bureaucracy of government that demands your service in the propagation of war while it preaches the Christian concept of "love thy neighbor." What you are interested in is peace through love.

Christ preached love for the purpose of the reconciliation of man. How can we of twentieth century become reconciled with each other? Robert Ardrey, author of "Man and Aggression," writes that, "To understand a man today, one must understand a fourth dimension — his entire genetic past as far back as one can probe." He says that if we embrace the reality of man, including his past, there is an opportunity for solving today's ills. And Kathy Hyland, writing in "Energy: Transactions in Time," observes that "In addition to his increasing reliance on scientific discoveries and technological advances, man should look to himself as the complete, most vital form of energy anywhere."

Reconciliation, then, requires first of all a recognition of the greatness and worth of each one of us as an individual; a search into our past and a look into our future. This is not easily done and poses many problems. But you and I have to attempt it and we must do it if brother is to be reconciled with brother and live in the harmony of peace and love.

Rev. Marion Bowman, OSB
President of Saint Leo College

A yearbook has an unique significance in that it captures time, holding it between hardbound covers to preserve memory and hope. As a newcomer, I cannot share recollections of the past year with you but I — like you — have aspirations for the future of St. Leo College. I would like to share these hopes with you.

It is a vast oversimplification to say that I would like to see the College of St. Leo develop into a model community of learning and living but, capsulized as it might be, the thought contains my basic philosophy in the words "learning," "living" and "community."

Times and values are changing. We cannot meet tomorrow's needs with yesterday's methods. The past, however, cannot be discarded either as being too shopworn for further use or as being so far out of fashion as to cause embarrassment if brought out of the closet. Still, the demands being placed on education and on the institutions of learning by students, faculty, and the world in which they live call for a rethinking of processes and goals.

If the future of learning is to be fulfilled, the present and the past must come to grips with each other. Not everything has changed. We — members of the staff, the student body, and the community — must determine how to meet our needs both in light of what we know the future will require while, at the same time, conserving those values of the past that we know to be realistic.

I believe in innovation. I do not believe in change just for the sake of change. When a concept is proven outdated and a better educational mousetrap is introduced, I am in favor of abandoning the one and utilizing the other. I cannot condone the scrapping of a program or a philosophy simply because it is old any more than I can endorse continuation because "that's the way we've always done things."

Change will continue to come to St. Leo. When it does, it is my sincere hope that it will be as the result of a communication of need by everyone concerned. Communication is an overworked word these days. That is not to say that it is an overworked concept of existence. I can assure you that it will be an everyday fact of life in the determination of St. Leo's future.

The needs of the academic program will be, of course, paramount in our considerations. I would hope that our deliberations also would include thought as to the cultural and social aspects of living on campus today and in the leisure-filled world that is the promise of tomorrow. There is opportunity in this for life enrichment nearly equal in importance to the mastery of textbook material.

Finally, I believe strongly in community involvement — and in the involvement of faculty with the community. The forces of change have knocked down the walls of the ivory tower. Colleges and universities are very much in the mainstream of life or, if they are still clinging to the rubble of the tower, they are passing up untold opportunity to receive and to contribute. There are needs to be met in the college and in the community. The separation of town and gown has no validity today in my opinion. Education has escaped from the confines of the classroom or the laboratory and, in so doing, has created a total community to unite separate strengths.

Dr. Thomas B. Southard

President-Elect of the College

I look forward to sharing these thoughts with you in detail. I am equally anxious to meet you personally. Some of you — those graduating seniors — I will meet as alumni and I anticipate this with pleasure. The faculty and undergraduates can expect to see me regularly and often as I solicit advice both formally and informally for the continuing improvement of the college of which we are already so proud.

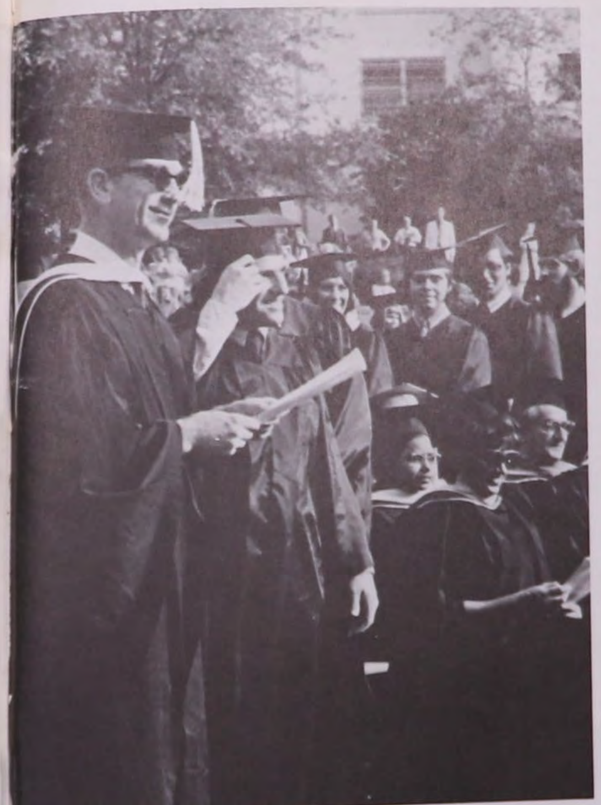
Graduation



U.S. Senator William E. Brock III, R-Tenn. graduation speaker.

With Everlasting Gratitude to the Class of 1971

It seemed a long, long, while from May to December
But the days grew short when we reached September
The days dwindled down to a precious few
And we were fortunate to have spent these golden years with you.

- Dr. and Mrs. John Keller

Dedication of the GOLDEN LEGEND '71 to Dr. and Mrs. John Keller

Richard P. Sullivan, Clara McDonald Olson Award

Mary E. Cannon, Robert Velton Student Service Award

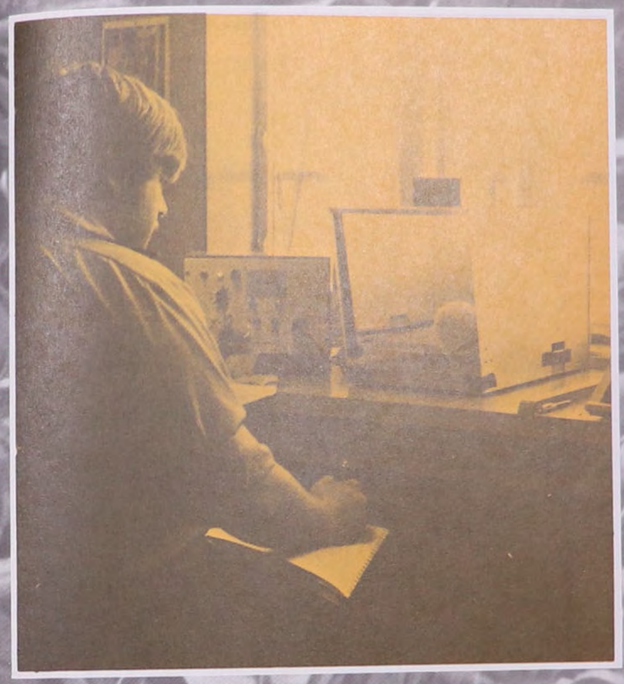
A Day at Leo's



Now the cars are packed,
the classrooms are empty,
and another year has ended
at Saint Leo College.
It seems like yesterday
we just arrived,
questioning our identity
and finding ourselves
and now this year is only a memory.
A smile, a laugh, a tear shall bring back a thought of a moment, a place, a person
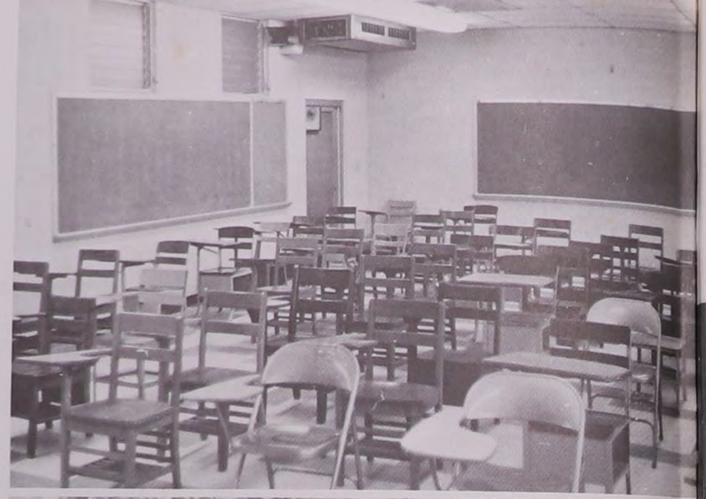
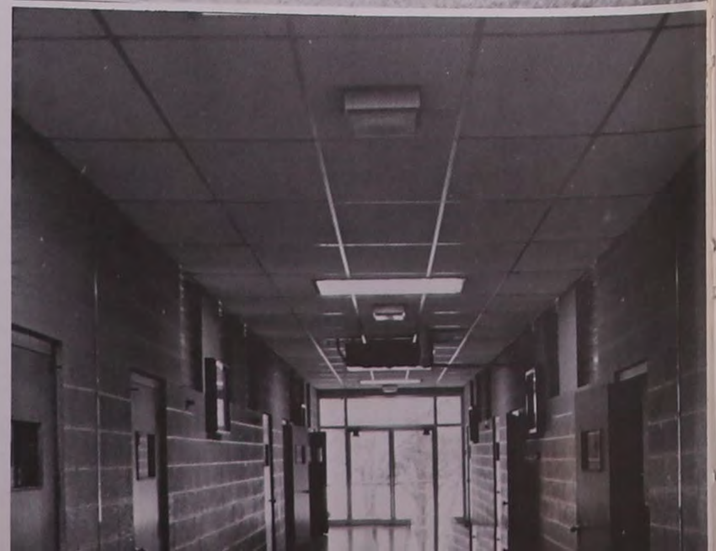
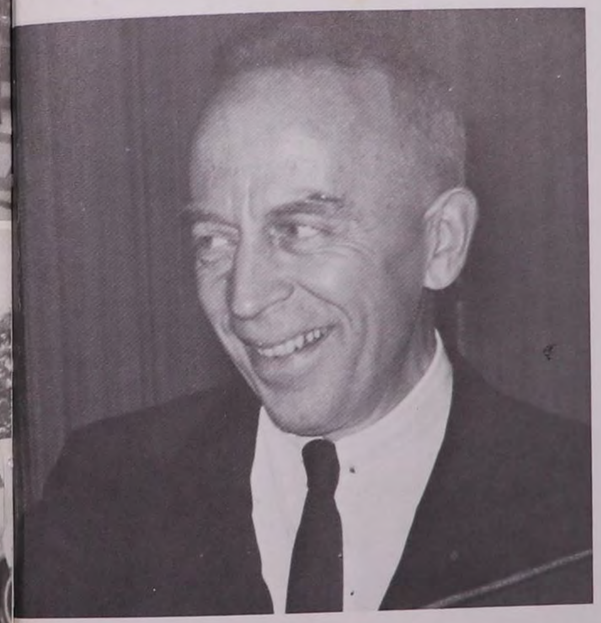
we once met here.
And we will look back at our times
at this place, Saint Leo,
at the times gone by . . .





Afterword



As I sit here in my office during one of the last "long nights" many thoughts run through my mind. My deepest thanks go to my staff for their dedication and many exhausting hours they put into the yearbook which is now in the hands of our readers. I sincerely hope you will enjoy the '71 LEGEND as much as we have enjoyed putting it together.

This is the moment where thanks are in call to many people who have shared in this yearbook experience. Their interest and understanding have been deeply appreciated:

the entire GOLDEN LEGEND staff for always being on call, pitching in when needed, and caring enough to put together a pictorial history of Saint Leo College.

the photographers of the staff for giving up so much of their time to cover events, developing pictures for me at the last minute and making the darkroom their "second home."

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Wiseman of Wiseman Studios for their excellent photography services and warm friendship.

Mr. Allan Powers, Mr. Fred Mohrmann and all the secretaries in Public Relations for being interested and always willing to find answers to questions I asked.

the Publications Board and Student Government Association for helping the yearbook out.

all club and Greek presidents, I appreciated your cooperation and patience.

Ron Binns of Taylor Publishing Company for assisting us in the making of LEGEND '71.

and to Peter for his patience and for always understanding.

A special thanks goes to Jane Snediker, my associate editor for so much. Together we worked well as a team and Jane's creativeness added so many ideas. Without Jane, I really don't know where the LEGEND would be today. Her interest and dedication will never be forgotten. Always to lend me a hand was Brother Bernard, my advisor. His faithfulness to us was great. When things looked gray, he always gave me the confidence to go on and his willingness to just do so much.

My gratitude goes to each and every person of Saint Leo for their interest. Our aim was to make this yearbook one every individual would be proud to own. I hope the '71 LEGEND will bring back many a memory to you in the future as it has brought to us.

Anne N. Reynolds
Editor of GOLDEN LEGEND '71

the sea is our mother and the moon is our brother and the sun is our heart.
So when we go our different ways
we will always be together.
And when we return for our reunion
we will have done what we had to do.
And, God willing,
the earth will be more gentle then.

Brother Bernard O.S.B.
